Health is the only tool that enables a person to reach a higher goal - realization of all talents and abilities. Careful, responsible attitude to our own health is kind of a philosophy of life. But very often the traditions we follow, the conditions in which we are placed, the habits that are passed on from generation to generation and seem to be an unshakeable axiom, are damaging to health, damaging to all of us. And after all a disease is not only the collapse of personal hopes, but also a heavy burden for the families, friends and, eventually, the entire state. Of course, the state must provide all the possibilities for treatment to a sick person (ideally it should help to prevent diseases). Unfortunately today Ukraine lags behind many countries in the logistics and medical supply. This lag makes it impossible to cope with the epidemic of tuberculosis, stop growing statistics of cancer. Is it ethical to not think about the health of the nation, of those horrible losses incurred by our country, and do nothing? The answer is clear: no! The task of the Foundation is focusing on its mission and effectively using our own resources to maintain and improve the health of the nation and thus enable every citizen to realize their full potential.
