The Government of Canada is making it easier for Canadians to find and access government information and services online through its central website, Canada.ca. The website is the single entry point for all government information and services available online and is accessible using any device with an Internet connection, including tablets or mobile phones. The Government of Canada created Canada.ca as part of its ongoing commitment to better serve Canadians. In response to the 2013 Budget, the site exists to give the public easier and faster access to the information and services they need, using any device, anytime. Information is organized by themes, topics and tasks most requested by the public, rather than by department or agency.
