The London School of Make-up offers students the best and most comprehensive makeup courses, makeup artistry training and media make up courses in London. Having worked for over thirty years in the beauty, fashion and makeup industry which included the last eighteen years as Founder & Managing Director of London Esthetique known as The London School of Beauty & Make-up, Mostyn Barnard set up an independent school devoted entirely to the education in makeup application and its allied industries. Using all his prior knowledge and experience he has gathered together the elite of the makeup industry to pass on their craft and technical know-how to the next generation of aspiring hair and makeup artists. From his experience in the educational field in makeup he truly believes the following two statements that “you don’t know what talent you have until you try it”. Plus “you are never too old to start a new career”. What are we about? The school is conveniently situated in central London close to the junction with Oxford Street and Regents Street. Each of its five studios is fitted out with wall mirrors and stage lights giving students a professional studio feel. Our mission is to offer students the best and most comprehensive makeup training in the country from some of the industries wealth of up to date talented professional working make-up artists. These talented individuals are invited to hand over their knowledge gained over years of experience in the industry to our students. We are not limited to any one brand but offer students the chance to work with most of the major fashion makeup houses while on the course helping to widen their product knowledge and experience. The school aims where ever possible to keep course prices realistic and affordable making them good value for money. To view all of the make up courses we offer, visit the make-up courses section of our website.
