Airtool is a unified enterprise application platform that enables organizations to build, deploy, and scale business systems such as ERP, CRM, WMS, and analytics within a single architecture. It eliminates fragmented software stacks by integrating application development, data management, workflows, and real-time analytics into one platform, ensuring consistent data and seamless operations. With a metadata-driven approach, Airtool accelerates application development while maintaining enterprise-grade performance and scalability. The platform supports flexible deployment across cloud, private cloud, and on-premise environments, giving organizations full control over their infrastructure and data. Designed for modern enterprises, Airtool delivers high performance, security, and unified governance across all business systems.
